Alene Stuart

Westwind Brass'
stellar volunteer

"I was introduced to the Westwind Brass during a performance at the San Diego Museum of Art many years ago," Alene remembers. Being a music lover and musician herself, she has always treasured music, specifically brass, and saw her chance of getting more involved with a local ensemble by volunteering.

Alene has been an essential help in organizing Westwind's music library. In addition, she has been a tremendous help at concerts: from ushering to supervising box office, and offering CDs and memberships. She is a passionate promoter of Westwind Brass' programs. "Alene has convinced more concert attendees than anyone else to join our ensemble as a member! She is very good with answering questions, and giving attendees the info they are looking for," says Carmen DeBello, Westwind's Director of Marketing & PR.

In addition to volunteering, Alene and her husband Frank have been long-term supporters of the ensemble.

Never afraid of saying what she thinks, Alene states clearly that Westwind's concert series at The Neurosciences Institute is her very favorite one: "The acoustics there are so marvelous, we should do all our performances there!"
